OUR MOVE TO THE MOBILE CLASSROOMS

Our first week in the mobile classrooms has, overall, been a success. As predicted there have been some minor teething problems but nothing that could not be managed or fixed. Children have adapted well and shown real independence in using the larger toilet facilities. We anticipated that some children would be unsettled by the transition and changes to their normal routines and expectations; however, as they are becoming more familiar with their new environment and its expectations, they are becoming more settled.

Facing a change like this can feel very tough while they are going through it, but once they realise it wasn't as difficult as they thought and that they did survive it, it means that those challenges to come won't feel so hard and feel survivable.

I am still very aware that there may be more teething problems over the coming weeks. Please let us know if you have any concerns or observations.

Best Wishes
